Paula is a contemporary landscape artist living in the Northern Tablelands of Walcha NSW. Her expressive paintings are known for their vivacious use of colour and gestural mark-making, melding between figurative and abstract. With a Degree in Environmental Science, the natural environment is consistently at the forefront of her works.

“My art is a continuous journey of discovery as I explore, through painting, our incredible and diverse environments around the country. I look deep into a landscape and extract the subtleties and connotations that lie within. My aim is to evoke emotion and a sense of place through my paintings. I create connections with the Australian environment to allow for a deeper understanding of the compelling beauty, the wild, the rugged and the mystery of our unique landforms.”

Paula has held 16 solo and numerous group exhibitions in Sydney and Australia wide. She has been selected in a range of art prizes, and her works are held in private and public collections within Australia and overseas, including the University of New England and State Library of NSW. She features in a selection of publications, including ‘A Painted Landscape’ by Amber Creswell-Bell, published by Thames & Hudson, and she has participated in several interviews with ABC regarding notable exhibitions. Paula curated a significant environmental exhibition in 2024 titled ‘Earthed’ at New England Regional Art Museum, including 14 multi-disciplinary artists from Australia wide. She is currently artist-in-residence and art therapist at BackTrack in Armidale, working on a range of murals and projects with the resident adolescents.
