Stacy Caldwell lives, works, and paints in Lancaster County, Pennsylvania, where the fields, hills, rivers, and streams play an important role in her oil painting, charcoal drawings, and gouache sketches.

The journey into painting began in earnest while working at a local university where she spent evenings and weekends studying painting, drawing, and art history.

In 2018 a three-week residency in an historic dune shack on Cape Cod in Massachusetts became an especially transformative experience. The isolation of the pandemic, correlating with the mentorship of E.M. Saniga, has also been an important influence.

In 2021, inspired by the journal drawings of François Dupuis, Stacy committed to her own daily practice using charcoal in a Moleskine journal and drawing from surprise encounters, memories, and the fleeting images of daily life. These drawings continue today and have become an important part of her practice.

Artist Statement

My paintings are a quiet response to the landscapes of my surroundings. They are an attempt to give honor to the mysterious beauty that reveals itself unexpectedly in familiar places. Time alone in Nature has been crucial to my experience of painting and drawing. For many years while working full-time in an office, I stole moments to go outside to paint or draw. It was simply a way to be outdoors as much as possible. Painting became a vehicle for having a conversation with Nature and responding directly to what she reveals when one gets quiet and gives attention. Attention is, after all, love.

In 2021 I began working daily in sketchbooks with gouache and charcoal in order to move beyond direct response to my surroundings and to explore what can arise out of memory, imagination, design, and invention. Since adding sketchbook work to my daily routine, I have been surprised to discover a new way of seeing the world and have become more aware of a new kind of beauty and mystery. This has been a true gift. I've recently begun attempting to approach the oil paintings in the same way as I approach the sketchbook work, which is to begin with an event, experience or image that lives in the mind and allow the painting to evolve from there.
